

If we step entirely away from your current core offerings—leaving behind document redaction, cybersecurity, and identity verification—and look at the broader federal marketplace, the absolute fastest-growing, most lucrative, and highest-margin micro-purchase service in demand nationwide right now is Section 508 Digital Accessibility Remediation.

Every single federal agency is experiencing a massive compliance crisis surrounding Section 508 of the Rehabilitation Act. This federal law strictly mandates that all digital content—including public and internal PDFs, agency websites, training videos, and mobile apps—must be completely accessible to individuals with disabilities.

When an agency posts a 1,000-page report, an internal training manual, or a public health video that isn't Section 508 compliant, they are violating federal law and face immediate civil rights lawsuits.

Here is why a Section 508 Remediation Bundle is an absolute goldmine for an agile federal contractor operating strictly via $15,000 micro-purchase swipes:

The Offer: The $14,200 "Section 508 Digital Compliance & Accessibility Block"

Instead of selling open-ended IT or design consulting, you productize digital accessibility as a transactional, fixed-scope micro-purchase block.

- The Price Tag: $14,200 per single GPC swipe.
- The Deliverable: A pre-purchased block of up to 2,000 pages of agency PDFs/documents or 20 hours of digital training multimedia fully remediated, tagged, and certified as 100% Section 508 and WCAG (Web Content Accessibility Guidelines) compliant.
- What the Work Actually Is: This is entirely digital document and data manipulation done from your desk. You take an agency's existing PDFs or web files and use standard software tools (like Adobe Acrobat Pro or automated accessibility engines) to fix the digital reading order, add alternative text ("alt text") to images, structure tables properly, and fix color contrast ratios so that screen readers used by the visually impaired can read them cleanly.

The Strategic NAICS Codes to Add

To capture these specific purchase card swipes, you would add one of these highly heavily utilized administrative and digital service codes to your profile:

NAICS Code	Description	Why It's Perfect for Section 508 Micros
54151	Other Computer	This is the primary catch-all code that federal agencies

NAICS Code	Description	Why It's Perfect for Section 508 Micros
9	Related Services	use to procure specialized digital document conversions, data formatting, and IT compliance testing.
561410	Document Preparation Services	An alternative high-volume procurement code explicitly covering formatting, editing, desktop publishing, and processing of agency documents.

Why This Service Sells Incredibly Fast

1. Every Single Agency Has the Pain: Every department from the CDC to the Department of Agriculture publishes thousands of documents a month. Their internal teams simply do not have the time to sit there and manually tag every single heading, table cell, and image in a PDF.
2. Absolute Zero Onboarding Friction: There is no sensitive background check or cybersecurity barrier required to look at a public-facing report or a standard employee training manual. An agency worker can simply email you a batch of files, swipe their GPC card, and you send back the compliant, certified versions in 10 business days.
3. High-Volume Re-Up Potential: Agencies don't just have one document; they have digital archives containing tens of thousands of pages. Once a program manager sees how quickly you remediate their first 2,000-page block, they will continuously swipe their card for additional blocks throughout the fiscal year to clear out their accessibility backlogs.
4. Massive Profit Margin: The software used to test and fix document accessibility is incredibly inexpensive. Once you or an assistant learn the technical rules of document tagging, you can process hundreds of pages a day directly from a computer screen, resulting in an almost 90% profit margin on a $14,200 transaction.

By positioning an offer as a Nationwide Section 508 Compliance Bureau, you tap into a non-stop, federally mandated requirement that applies to every single corner of the government, completely independent of any service you currently provide.
